Bryan Jass understands that great lighting design begins and ends with in-depth coordination between all members of the design team. He prides himself on making sure every detail has been properly designed and documented.

Bryan strives for an exceedingly energy efficient design while maintaining the overall integrity and functionality of every project. His success in doing so has developed not only an awareness from clients/architects of the economic benefits of this approach, but also the confidence that high quality, aesthetically pleasing design need not take a back seat to make it happen.
